What an amazing few years it has been for river cruising, with exciting new vessels launching and ever-growing demand as more and more British passengers discover this is a fine way to travel. In 2017 alone, numbers rose 24% to top 210,000 for the first time, according to Clia UK & Ireland, the UK's official cruise industry association.

This year is shaping up to be another fantastic 12 months, with more new river ships on the horizon and many cruises in 2020 available for booking already.

What is the attraction? Quite simply being able to travel in a first-class floating hotel and discover spectacular cities and little-known towns and villages around Europe, Asia and the US that all have fascinating stories to tell.

Want to know more? Take time to read our 2019/20 River Cruise Diary, which is packed with information about the rivers you could be enjoying, as well as offering hints and tips to help you enjoy your cruise.

State-of-the-art Space-Ships

Our state-of-the-art Space-Ships have been designed to redefine luxury river cruising. With innovative new technology, a wide selection of dining options, an on board Wellness Centre, and the most spacious suites on Europe's waters, you won't be disappointed.

Each balcony suite features our exclusive Scenic Sun Lounge system, transforming the window into a balcony at the touch of a button. Guests can enjoy a 1:3 crew to passenger ratio with a butler service for everyone.

River cruising is the holiday hit of the decade, gaining thousands of new followers each year who are drawn to the alluring mix of easy adventure and discovery that awaits on the world's waterways.

It is a very different style of travel to ocean cruising. The ships are smaller, carrying an average of just 150 passengers, and they navigate rivers and canals rather than sailing vast oceans, enabling passengers to really get under the skin of places instead of just visiting.

There is always something to see along the river banks - churches and castles in Europe, remote villages in Asia - and when vessels dock, it is often in the heart of a big city or town. As they don't need clearance by local authorities, once the gangway is in position, passengers can just walk ashore and discover new sights, sounds and tastes.

All that and the ease of just unpacking once as your floating hotel glides from one place to another.

As the number of river cruise passengers has grown (the UK market alone rocketed 24% in 2017 to reach a record 210,400 in 2017, according to official figures, and numbers from the US and Australia are way higher), so the river ships and product have adapted to suit changing expectations.

Most modern river ships now offer cabins with balconies, additional places to eat and larger spas. AmaMagna, a new vessel being built by AmaWaterways and launching in May 2019, is twice the width of other river cruise vessels, has four places to eat, a wellness studio and a rear watersports platform. The only other river ship of the same size is Crystal River Cruises' Crystal Mozart.

Crucially, cruise fares now include a lot of things that once cost extra. It does mean that river cruising is not a cheap option, but it is great value and very appealing to mature passengers (the majority of river cruisers are retired) as they don't have to think about extra costs while travelling.

A seven-night Rhine cruise in June costs from £2,345 per person with Scenic and from £2,239 per person with Uniworld. Both are among a few river cruise lines that include everything from flights and transfers to drinks, excursions and gratuities in the price.

Even those that are not all-inclusive usually incorporate one or two perks in the price, whether it be free drinks at meal times, excursions or gratuities. Emerald Waterways includes all three, but usually only one excursion per port (with others at extra cost); AmaWaterways includes drinks with meals and a choice of excursions.

Saga includes drinks with meals and some excursions, A-Rosa charges for excursions but includes drinks. Fred Olsen Cruise Lines charges for both drinks (beverage packages are available) and excursions.

Most include alternative dining where available as well as Wi-Fi. Exceptions include the Vintage Room on Crystal Cruises' river ships, where a handful of passengers can enjoy wine-themed lunches and dinners for an extra fee, and the waiter-service restaurants on A-Rosa vessels.

FOLLOW THE TRENDS

The trend for more rigorous excursions and activities is growing fast among river cruise companies as 60 becomes the new 40 and lines look to attract a younger generation.

Companies including Uniworld, Crystal, AmaWaterways, Scenic and Emerald Waterways carry bikes that passengers can borrow for guided cycle rides or to explore alone, and hiking tours increasingly figure among the choice of excursions on offer.

Avalon Waterways has dedicated active cruises on the Rhine, Danube and, new for 2019, the Rhône in France, while CroisiEurope has cycling and walking-themed departures with 30-mile bike rides and hikes of five to eight miles most days.

AmaWaterways has wellness instructors on all its cruises this year. Those sailing the Seine, Rhine or Danube with U by Uniworld can go kayaking and walking across the rooftops of Paris.

Family river cruises are also becoming more popular. Children can go on most cruises with most lines, but Uniworld, Tauck and A-Rosa have dedicated family departures with special activities and excursions to keep youngsters amused. On A-Rosa, children aged up to 15 travel for free when sharing a cabin with an adult.

ROOMS WITH A VIEW

Cabins on river ships all face the water but have a multitude of different designs.

On Scenic, Emerald Waterways, Uniworld River Cruises, Crystal Cruises, Amadeus River Cruises, the rooms have panoramic windows that are split horizontally and open downwards at the touch of a button. In their top suites, Scenic, Uniworld and Emerald Waterways use a combination of panoramic windows and internal glass doors to create sun lounges.

AmaWaterways' vessels, which are also used by APT, have split balconies so passengers can sit either inside or out, depending on the weather.

Avalon Waterways vessels have two decks of cabins with wall-to-wall glass windows that open two-thirds the width of the room (pictured above) and give the impression of a balcony when opened up on sunny days.

Tauck's newest river ships, Joy, Grace, Inspire and Savor, have traditional French balconies that open to a fixed rail. Suites, which occupy almost an entire deck on each of these vessels, have two such balconies and are about half the size of a squash court.

Demand for suites is so high that Tauck, Scenic and Uniworld have created larger rooms on some of their vessels by knocking two cabins into three. The latest to get the refurb is Uniworld's River Royale, which relaunches in March with four new suites.

Crystal River Cruises' Crystal Mozart and AmaWaterways' new AmaMagna have suites that are more than three times bigger than an average cabin.

Most river ships have a handful of lower deck cabins that are below the waterline and have a high fixed window. These are targeted at clients on a budget and often designated as single cabins with no supplement.

WHY TAKE A RIVER CRUISE

Tauck's Inspiration-class vessels each have four lower deck Loft Suites (pictured above) with a raised seating platform and deep window that can be partially opened.

Exceptionally, Crystal River Cruises has got rid of lower-deck cabins altogether on Crystal Bach, Debussy, Mahler and Ravel. All their cabins are above the water line and have panorama windows that open horizontally.

You can expect cabins and suites on all river ships to have hairdryers, safes and en-suite facilities. Most have showers rather than baths. Scenic and Crystal River Cruises provide butlers for all passengers. Cabins and suites on Amadeus River Cruises and Crystal's vessels have walk-in wardrobes.

EUROPE'S RIVERS

The Rhine and Danube are the top-selling rivers in the UK, between them attracting more than half of all British river cruise passengers in 2017 on account of the many things to see and do along the way.

The Rhine is popular for the many castles along a deep gorge that runs 58 miles between Koblenz in the north and Rudesheim in the south but returning passengers will find plenty to enjoy on itineraries that also explore its tributaries, the Moselle and Main.

The Moselle is a narrow waterway that flows through one of Germany's top wine-growing regions and is lined with vineyards and picture-postcard villages; the Main is also narrow and takes passengers to towns and cities with centuries-old history and culture.

The Danube is best known for itineraries that tick off the cities of Budapest, Vienna and Bratislava, but you can also venture to the lower reaches, visiting lesser-known towns and cities in Romania, Bulgaria, Serbia, Croatia and Hungary, where Romans, Ottomans and the Soviet Union all left their mark.

And in case you can't choose which to do, two-week itineraries between Amsterdam and Budapest tick off the Rhine, Main, Main-Danube Canal and Danube.

Once you have done those, there are plenty of other rivers to explore. In France, the Rhône and Seine are the big two, but there are also one-week sailings on the Garonne, Gironde and Dordogne Rivers in Aquitaine that visit some of France's leading wine-growing regions, and barge holidays along the Loire Valley.

The Douro in Northern Portugal was 2017's sales star, recording an incredible 85% growth in the UK to a total 20,700 passengers. You can choose itineraries that sail round-trip from Porto or combine a one-way cruise from Porto to the Spanish border at Vega de Terron with a few nights in Madrid. Either way you'll have tours and tastings in port wine lodges and take in a flamenco show.

There are also spring-time cruises through the Dutch and Belgian waterways timed for when the tulip fields are in bloom, voyages along the Elbe between Berlin and Prague that combine stories of Martin Luther, porcelain and the World War Two bombing of Dresden, and sailings on the Guadalquivir in Spain and the Po in Italy.

In Russia, you can combine a cruise on the rivers, lakes and canals that link Moscow and St Petersburg with a few nights in both cities.

DISCOVERING THE REST OF THE WORLD

Those who are prepared to travel further afield have even more choice. Voyages along the Mekong River between Siem Reap and Ho Chi Minh City are the top-sellers when it comes to long-haul river cruises thanks to an exhilarating combination of ancient temples, exciting cities and exotic markets.

Staying in Asia, three or four-night cruises through the towering three gorges on the Yangtze in China offer a moment to relax on tours that take in the cities of Beijing and Shanghai. In Myanmar, golden pagodas, trips to workshops and balloon rides over Bagan await on voyages on the Irrawaddy.

The Po
The Po is the longest river in Italy, flowing 652 miles from the Cottian Alps and emptying into the Adriatic south of Venice. However, river cruises sail only about 60 miles upriver to Polesella. As well as spending time in Venice, there are excursions to Padua, one of the oldest cities in Italy, Bologna and Ravenna, notable for the 5th and 6th-century mosaics that adorn its churches and Basilicas. Ferrara, also visited, is a medieval town with ancient cobbled streets.

What's new for 2019

Amadeus River Cruises, Avalon Waterways, Riviera Travel and Viking River Cruises are all launching new river ships on the Rhine and Danube in 2019.

AmaWaterways' AmaMagna will be twice the width of other river ships and have four complimentary places to eat including Chef's Table, which serves a taster menu, Al Fresco, an outside/inside venue at the front of the ship, and Jimmy's Wine Bar.

Saga has a new 23-night river cruise through the heart of Europe, from Amsterdam to the Black Sea. The cruise, exclusively for Saga customers, is on the river ship Amadeus Royal on five dates next summer and includes a post-cruise hotel night in Bucharest in Romania.

Uniworld River Cruises' River Royale re-enters service on the Garonne, Gironde and Dordogne Rivers in spring after a massive refit that will add a pool, four suites and two dining venues. It will also have a new name, Bon Voyage.

CroisiEurope, AmaWaterways and Viking are building new vessels to sail the Douro in Northern Portugal in 2019, while A-Rosa is making its debut on the river with the new A-Rosa Alva. Starting 2020, Tauck will be cruising the river on the new Andorinha.

Emerald Waterways is launching its first river ship in Asia. Emerald Harmony will accommodate 84 passengers, have an outdoor pool and bar, two inside lounges and sail the Mekong between Siem Reap and Ho Chi Minh City.

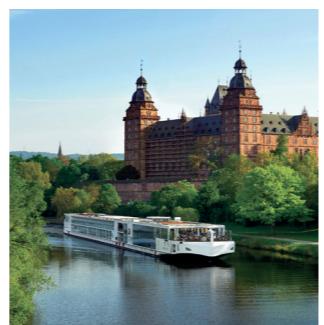

Passengers sailing the Seine with U by Uniworld can sleep under the stars on the top deck of The B starting 2019. The £60 per person price tag for the 'rooftop camping' includes an evening cocktail and breakfast hamper.

APT has seven new Signature Experiences in Europe for 2019 including a journey on the Grand Empress steam train in Budapest on Magnificent Europe itineraries and a Lido de Paris dance show on Seine cruises. There's a private cocktail reception at the Pont du Gard on the Rhône and cocktails and Fado music at Palácio da Bolsa on the Douro.

CroisiEurope has new one-week culinary cruises on the Rhone with included tours to the Valrhona chocolate factory in Tain l'Hermitage and Les Halles in Lyon, and dinner (extra charge) at Paul Bocuse's Abbaye de Collonges. Departures are weekly between April and October 2019.

Crystal River Cruises' 2021 itineraries include a new 11-night Eastern Danube Discoveries voyage round-trip from Vienna that visits Hungary, Serbia and Croatia, and includes a cruise through the Iron Gates Gorge.

A-Rosa is putting 11 e-bikes on its Seine river ship A-Rosa Viva. It offers 3.5-hour bike tours to Monet's Garden from Vernon and around Normandy. They cost extra and can be booked on board.
